References

Administrative Committee on Coordination - Subcommittee on Nutrition (ACC-SCN) (1991b) Some options for improving nutrition in the 1990s. Supplement to SCN News No. 7. Geneva, ACC-SCN.

Arroyave G et al. (1974) [Effects of the intake of sugar fortified with retinol, by the pregnant women and infant whose diet is usually low in vitamin A. Study of the mother and child.] Archivos Latinoamericanos de nutricion, 24:485-512.

Bhargava M et al. (1991) Relationship of maternal serum ferritin with foetal serum ferritin,

Brown KH et al. (1993) Potential magnitude of the misclassification of a population's trace

Complementary feeding of young children in developing countries

Cohen RJ et al. (1995c) Delaying the introduction of complementary foods until 6 months does not affect appetite or mother’s report of food acceptance of breastfed infants from 6 to 12 months in a low-income, Honduran population. Journal of nutrition, 125:2787-2792.

185

Edelmann CM, Barnett HL, Troupkou V (1960) Renal concentrating mechanisms in newborn infants. Effect of dietary protein and water content, role of urea, and

Gopaldas T et al. (1986) Studies on reduction in viscosity of thick rice gruels with small quantities of an amylase-rich cereal malt. Food and nutrition bulletin, 8:42-47.

Hounhouigan DJ et al. (1993a) Composition and microbiological and physical attributes of mawé, a fermented maize dough from Bénin. International journal of food science and technology, 28:513-517.

Jackson DA et al. (1990) Supplementary feeding and infant growth in northern Thailand.
In: Atkinson SA, Hanson LA, Chandra RK, eds. Breast-feeding, nutrition, infection and infant growth in developed and emerging countries. Newfoundland, Canada, ARTS Biomedical Publishers and Distributors.

Lebenthal E, Leung Y (1989) Alternative pathways of digestion and absorption in the Lutter C (1992) Recommended length of exclusive breast-feeding, age of introduction of Complementary feeding of young children in developing countries

Martorell R et al. (1975b) Protein-calorie supplementation and postnatal physical growth: a review of findings from developing countries. Archivos Latinoamericanos de nutricion, 26:115-128.

198
Complementary feeding of young children in developing countries

Plank SJ, Milanesi ML (1973) Infant feeding and infant mortality in rural Chile. Bulletin journal of clinical nutrition, 50 (1 Suppl):S82-S110.

Rocquelin et al. (1998) Lipid content and essential fatty acid (EFA) composition of mature Congolese breast milk are influenced by mothers’ nutritional status: Impact on infants’ EFA supply. European journal of clinical nutrition, 52: 164-171.

203
Roy S et al. (1989) Dynamics of vitamin A levels in the breastmilk of mothers of low socio-economic status in Bangladesh. IVACG meeting, Kathmandu, Nepal.

Shulman RJ et al. (1983) Utilization of dietary cereal by young infants. Journal of Specker BL et al. (1990) Vitamin B_{12} in low milk concentrations are related to low serum concentrations in vegetarian women and to methylmalonic aciduria in their infants. American journal of clinical nutrition, 52:1073-1076.

Wilson EE, Windle WF, Alt HL (1941) Deprivation of placental blood as a cause of iron Bureau of Africa. AFR/NUT/110.

World Health Organization (WHO) Management of Severe Malnutrition - A Manual for Physicians and Other Senior Health Workers. (in press)

Zoppi G et al. (1972) Exocrine pancreas function in premature and full term neonates. Pediatric research, 6:880-886.